Another Cold Wave Moves Eastward; 60 Persons Die

Quake Toll Is 25 In Philippines

Fear Is Spread Through Central Islands by 17 Tremors

Manila, Jan. 26 (AP)—Earthquakes that killed 25 persons and caused vast damage spread a frenzy of fear through the central Philippines from shortly after midnight Saturday until late Sunday afternoon.

Seventeen separate shocks were recorded at the important port city of Iloilo on Panay, and each drew hysterical residents from their homes, often into still greater danger in the streets. In Iloilo, a woman was paralyzed by a falling water main in the street. In one suburb a deep crevice 90 yards long and a yard wide was reported sending geysers of water and black sand as high as nearby coconut palms.

Describing the same 12 hours after the first terrific shock, Manila Times correspondent Jesus P. Ramos wrote: "A two-minute quake is rocking Iloilo. People again are running pell-mell into the streets... a woman hysterically screams as she leads her child: 'More are coming! Oh, mother of God, could this be the end?'"

One Australian, James Hoffmann, 61, employee of a steelworks company, and one unidentified American were reported among the dead.

Panay, Negros, Cebu, Leyte and Marikina Islands all were jolted, but Panay on the basis of early reports seemed hardest hit. Iloilo city, a part of 125,000 population, noted for sugar, rum and copra exports, is 245 airline miles southeast of Manila.

The Public Works Department in Manila said estimates of damage were incomplete but would certainly exceed $500,000. From the devastated area, a Christian typhoon which caused 91 casualties, one-third of them on the Danish motorship, Kina.

Falling debris from major buildings caused most of the casualties. One man died as he knelt in prayer in a church in Almodin, an Iloilo suburb, and an American and four Filipinos were reported crushed by falling walls on a downtown street. Four men were buried in the collapse of a six-story cathedral belfry three centuries old, but rescuers dug them out alive after five hours' frantic work.

Of four additional fatalities reported, one was a 12-year-old youth caught asleep in the wings of the partially-demolished Otton cathedral. A 34-year-old laborer was crushed to death when an electric light post toppled into his house. At San Miguel, one policeman was killed.

Anti-Freeze Ignites; Auto Is Damaged

Leaking anti-freeze ignited and caused considerable damage to an automobile owned by Francis Clark of 41 Brewster street this morning, according to the fire department. Engine 1 was dispatched in answer to a telephone call at 7:56 a. m., reporting the fire in the car, which was on Broadway near Stuyvesant street. The fire was extinguished by the fire department. Besides damage to the motor, paint on the hood was peeled off by the heat of the fire.

Britain to Keep Pound Value, Cripps Says, Despite Franc Drop

Farley Says Time Has Come for Nation To Take Firm Stand; Has Optimistic View

Asks Politics Have No Part in Big Issues Which Are American

Conditions are far worse today at home and abroad than the general public realizes and it is time that we take a firm stand, declared former Postmaster General James A. Farley at the annual dinner of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, which was attended by approximately 250 at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Whether we have war or peace, the former Democratic national chairman said, he had optimistic faith in the American people to come through. But, he asserted, this is no time for politics in our government. This is no mere party issue, but an American issue.

The Communist world is eagerly expecting our economic problem at home will weaken us abroad and we must disappoint them at all costs, he said.

Continuing, he stated it may be wise at a time like this to defer as many of the government expenditures as possible and hold them for a period, later on, when there is greater unemployment and greater need for stimulating business.

It is not wise, however, in the troubled state of the world, to economize in matters that affect our national defense. We should strengthen our forces and take a strong stand now, he declared.

Mr. Farley emphasized the importance of helping Europe in attaining recovery and in building up free institutions. And he said he was convinced that we should draw in the management of the administrative machinery some of the best brains that America's free enterprise system has created. We must look for management and direction to those who have successfully managed and directed the great production enterprises of the United States.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Farley told of his long acquaintance with Ray Garraghan and one of his former visits to Kingston, where he played ball and played politics with the same degree of success.

He also spoke of his high regard for the late Simon Van Wagoner, who was in the assembly with him.

Speaking to Senator A. J. Wicks, the speaker said that it was his great ambition to serve in that body, but never made it.

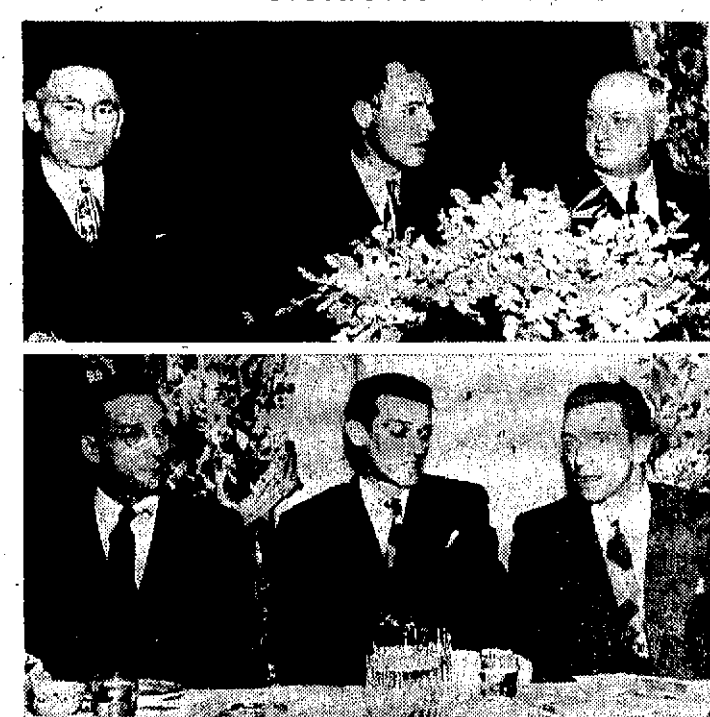

Congressman LeFevre's father was another friend of Mr. Farley's, whom he mentioned in connection with Ulster county friends, as well as Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schrick, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Goldrick, cousins of the speaker, also were present.

Stekete President Preceding the dinner, the directors elected Louis B. Stekete, president; Clarence Rowland, Louis B. Stekete and George Schneider, vice presidents and R. W. Garraghan, treasurer.

President Stekete asked the continued cooperation of the members and called for a research committee of volunteers to assist the various committees. He said the Chamber of Commerce would

Dawkins Grocery Warehouse Burns; Loss About $3,500

Foxhall Avenue Grocer Loses Contents of Brick Garage Saturday

With fire apparatus occupied at another fire, and delayed by a railroad crossing and bad weather, fire Saturday afternoon destroyed the contents of a garage used by George A. Dawkins as a warehouse for grocery products.

Loss was placed at between $3,000 and $3,500 by Dawkins this morning. He is the operator of a grocery store at 100 Foxhall avenue, and keeps a stock of supplies in a two-car brick garage in the rear of the premises, where the fire broke out at 4:20 p. m. Saturday.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said this morning that the delay was a regrettable incident "beyond the control of anybody." He said he felt badly about the situation, but that he feels there is no call for apologies, since it was one of those "impossible situations" which happen very rarely.

Answered Car Fire The chief explained that at 4:21 p. m. a telephone alarm was received for a car fire at 285 Clifton avenue. Engine 1 was dispatched, and the A. H. Wicks Engine Company was notified.

At 4:22 p. m., the chief said, the call from Dawkins was received. Engine 1 was already on the way to Clifton avenue, so the aerial

Six Persons Hurt At New Paltz

Automobile, County Plow Collide; Car Is Damaged

The driver of an auto and five other occupants were injured when it was in collision with County Highway department snowplow at New Paltz at 11:20 p. m. Saturday.

Richard Earl Heinicke of Port Jervis, the driver of the auto, according to the sheriff's office, suffered a sprained right wrist and the car was damaged considerably. The others injured were: Elaine Hoover, 20, of Newburgh, multiple contusions of the legs and head injury; Lois Erickson, 18, of Lynbrook, N. Y., laceration of the right knee; Sylvia Fink, 19, of Yonkers, laceration of the face; Bernard Wallerstein, 23, of Highland, a fracture of one toe and Dorothy Ann Shively, 19, of Brewster, laceration of the forehead.

The plow, according to the report, was headed toward Ireland Corners on Route 208 at the time. It was driven by George J. Marburger, 207 Clifton avenue, Kingston. The auto was traveling in the opposite direction.

The car was damaged mostly in its front, including windshield and windows. The plow was not damaged, the report said.

Deputy Sheriffs Ray Winne, Harry Keator and Leonard Newkirk investigated.

Summary of Accidents The chief included in his report a summary of traffic accidents during the year, which showed that one person was killed and 105 persons injured in 73 traffic accidents. Of those injured, 31 were severely hurt, the report discloses. This report was prepared by Lieutenant William J. Leonard.

The one traffic fatality was that of Albert M. Schussler, a pedestrian, who died on January 12 after being struck by an automobile on Abel street, the chief said. Among those listed as seriously injured in automobile accidents was Chief of Police Ernest A. Boss, who was injured in a collision on November 14, and who died at Kingston Hospital on December 24.

Acting Chief Van Buren also said in his report that the crime condition in the city has been held to the minimum. "Major crimes are very few compared with other cities in the state. Only one homicide case was reported in the city last year, and the guilty person was arrested and convicted," he said.

A summary of arrests accompanying his report showed that a total of 736 persons were arrested in this city last year, of which 687 were men and 49 were women.

Selling Prices $9,060 Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—The selling price of the average new house reached $9,060 last November—more than double the price of $4,440 in 1939, a Commerce Department report said today. The department earlier had predicted that construction costs will be at least "moderately" higher this year. While the selling price of the average house rose 104 per cent between 1939 and November, 1947, costs of lumber increased 183 per cent, said the report.

Milkman Saves 3 in Poughkeepsie Apartment Blaze

Robert Kipp, 42, Carries Children to Safety, Catches Mother in Drop

Poughkeepsie, Jan. 26.—A young mother vested faith in the strong arms of a 42-year-old milkman who rescued her and her two children during a fire which damaged the second and third floors of a six-family structure at 27 Tulip street, here, Saturday night.

Mrs. Anna Hosier, 27, who was trapped in her third-floor apartment, dropped safely into the arms of Robert Kipp, the milkman, who braced himself on a window ledge below and caught her. Kipp also had brought the children, one-year-old Constance and Donald, 4, to safety down stairways.

The fire was the second serious blaze in the city within 24 hours. The other, discovered at 2 a. m. Saturday, destroyed the roof of a 2½-story brick rooming house at 496 Main street. Two alarms were sounded for the second fire, discovered at 11:10 p. m. Saturday.

All of the six families were routed by the Tulip street blaze, the official report said. Kipp, the report said, brought the one child down a front stairway and the other out a rear exit.

The flames, meanwhile, had trapped Mrs. Hosier in her room, and the milkman, hearing her call for help, shouted for her to drop from the window ledge above.

Firemen described Mrs. Hosier as "trail," but they were still unable to explain how Kipp had managed to bring her to safety from the window below.

The blaze apparently started from a defective chimney, the authorities said. It damaged the rear apartment more than the others, and they were the only family unable to return.

Nine rooms of the brick structure on Main street were occupied at the time of the fire, firemen reported. The building is owned by the Dade Realty Co., and was operated as a rooming house by Max Phillips.

Another Main street building was badly damaged in a three-alarm fire several weeks ago and an apartment house in the residential section was damaged in a serious blaze earlier this month.

Cow Sets Record on Beer London, Jan. 26 (AP)—Bridge Birch, a beer-drinking Friesian cow, is the world's biggest milk producer, her owner says. R. A. Pierson, of Moortown Farm, Ringwood, said that on a diet including a half gallon of stout a day, Bridge Birch gave 41,952 pounds of milk for 329 days ended last night. Pierson said the record for 365 days, held by an American Holstein Friesian, was 41,943.

Protection Plan Is Not Disclosed

Sir Stafford Reports Consultations Are Continuing With French

Rate Is 214 to $1

Exporters Will Get Even Higher on Free Market

London, Jan. 26 (AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps declared today Britain does not contemplate devaluing the pound despite French action in cutting the value of the franc.

"We do not believe that this will be rendered necessary or advisable," the chancellor of the exchequer advised the House of Commons. Earlier government securities had dipped on the Stock Exchange, reflecting investors' fears that France's action will damage the pound sterling.

France had overridden objections of both Britain and the international monetary fund in revaluing her money. The devaluation gave French manufacturers a chance to cut their prices as much as one-half in world markets and consequently threatened British markets abroad.

Sir Stafford did not disclose what steps would be taken to protect the pound.

Consultations are continuing with the French, he disclosed. "In any action that we are compelled to take," he declared, "we shall, of course, exercise the greatest care not to add to the difficulties of our French friends more than might prove absolutely inevitable."

Sir Stafford pointed out that Britain is responsible to the whole of the sterling area for measures to be taken.

"We must, therefore, maintain our freedom to take any action which may be found necessary," he asserted.

The devaluation amounts to about 44 per cent for French exporters. They now will get many more francs for their dollars than they have been getting.

Rate Is 214 to $1 Up to midnight, the franc was officially quoted at 119 to $1. The new rate is 214 to $1, but exporters will be able to realize even more than that. They will trade half their dollars at the 214-1 rate, and the other half at a newly created free market, currently around 337 francs to the dollar.

This free market also will be open to tourists. France hopes this action and the benefits to exports will bring her more dollars for purchase of essential goods abroad. The object is to attain French recovery before prices rise too much at home, as they are bound to do.

The Paris stock market as a whole was calm today. French government bonds, gold and free currencies showed a decline. Many French industrial and international stocks were higher.

In London Cripps said the Anglo-French differences on currency devaluation would not endanger western European cooperation, called for last week by foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

"This is different from the view," he declared, "will not have an effect whatsoever on our sincere and earnest desire to cooperate with the government of France to the fullest extent in the economic as well as in the political field."

Asked by Sir John Anderson, a former chancellor, if measures had been taken to "minimize the repercussions on other European currencies," Sir Stafford replied: "I can give that assurance. We have gone into this matter very thoroughly and we have prepared all the necessary steps. I hope. We are now in consultation with the French government today as to how best they can be applied."

Details Discussions He detailed his discussions with the French. These started 10 days ago with a visit of the French truck from the Central station was dispatched to the Dawkins store, but could do nothing since it carries no hose.

Wicks Engine Company was immediately called, and told to go to the Dawkins fire, instead of the Central station. They reported that they were delayed at the railroad crossing on Foxhall avenue by a freight train, and that they had to proceed slowly because of the slippery conditions of the streets due to the snowstorm then in progress.

Meantime, Cornell Hose Company was notified. Central Engine 2 was ordered to central station to cover. On arrival, that engine was also sent to the Dawkins store, the chief said.

Fire Was Rapid

Dawkins said today that it was at least 15 to 20 minutes from the time he first called the Central station until a drop of water was placed on the fire. By that time, the fire, which started in an oil stove, had burst the reservoir, resulting in a fast fire, Chief Murphy said.

Further delay in getting a hose line on the fire was reported by members of the Wicks company, who said that the fire hydrant caps were frozen, making it difficult to remove them and attach the hose couplings.

Firemen also reported that water froze immediately upon everything it touched, including the firemen's hats and clothing. A stiff wind and falling snow further complicated matters. The official temperature at the city hall at 1:30 p. m. Saturday was three degrees above zero.

Robertson Car Burns

The automobile fire which occurred just one minute before the Dawkins alarm came in caused slight damage to a car owned by Clarence Robertson of 133 Clifton avenue, chief engineer at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Chief Murphy said today that this fire was probably due to a leak in the radiator hose.

Firemen had just returned from another fire when this alarm was received. The previous fire was in the kitchen of the Governor Clinton Hotel, and was reported at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. Chief Murphy reported that someone employed in the kitchen had moved a stove pot on the range, causing grease to spill over and become ignited. This fire was extinguished by employees of the department, the chief said. There was considerable smoke in the kitchen, he reported, but no other damage.

nace minister, Rene Mayer, in London.

Britain was willing to accept straight devaluation of the franc, he said, but opposed the French scheme to set up a free market in currency. It is this free market that economists say involves the danger to other European exchange rates in relation to the dollar.

"We told the French government that if they found it possible to accept a straight devaluation of the franc without the system of a free market, we would do all we could to help them by immediately decreasing the expansion of trade between the franc and sterling areas on that basis," Cripps declared.

VICKS VAPORUB

The pay roll for members of the Kingston Fire Department has been certified by the fire board of fire commissioners in accordance with an agreement reached last Friday, and it is expected that the firemen will be paid this afternoon.

The pay will be for the period from January 1 to January 15, and will be in the amounts specified in the 1948 budget as adopted by the Common Council on January 6. According to a stipulation made in Albany on Friday by attorneys for the city and the firemen, the men may accept this pay without prejudicing their claim for the salaries set them by the fire board in December.

Payment was held up on January 15 when the fire board refused to certify a pay roll as provided in the budget, but certified one based upon the higher scale passed by the board. This pay roll the city treasurer refused to honor.

Following a meeting in the mayor's office Friday afternoon, President Fred C. Harder of the fire board agreed to certify the pay roll in accordance with the stipulation. Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said this morning that this had been done, and that now the pay roll checks must be signed by City Treasurer Oscar A. Goodsell and certified by the Municipal Civil Service Commission.

In view of the agreement made Friday, it is expected that no one will stand in the way of the firemen receiving their pay.

Ban on Oil Exports Asked by Group

House Interstate Committee Says Action Needed to Aid Citizens

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—An immediate ban on all exports of petroleum products was recommended today by the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

The action is necessary, the committee reported to the House, because of too optimistic estimates of supplies, the weather, and "the gravity of the outlook in oil supply in the event of a war emergency."

The committee recommended also that:

1. Earlier suggestions for curtailing the use of oil in government buildings be carried out.

2. No further foreign petroleum commitments be made pending a review of the degree of confidence which we justifiably may have in imports and foreign reserves.

3. New funds and authority be given the Interior Department for acceleration of the program for developing oil from coal and shale.

Congress create a joint committee to formulate a national fuel policy.

"The committee has been studying the petroleum situation. It said exports of distillate and residual oils continue and 'the situation is now so grave that exports should be stopped completely until it can be determined whether other exports are damaging to the economy of this country.'"

9 Billion Outlay Proposed to Make Needed Synthetics

Secretary of Interior Krug Says U. S. Can't Rely on Petroleum Supplies

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—A $9,000,000,000 outlay over the next five to ten years to produce synthetic oil and gasoline on a commercial basis was proposed to Congress today by Secretary of the Interior Krug.

With winter-accustomed petroleum shortages sharpening his words, Krug said in a formal report:

"It is clear now that the United States cannot rely exclusively on petroleum to supply all future requirements for liquid fuels and related products."

The nation, he commented, already "is subjected between increasing demand and decreasing productive capacity." And if the international trend continues "the production of the world's oil available to the United States may diminish markedly," he said.

But setting up a synthetic fuel industry, Krug said, "is far too large an operation and requires too much time to be undertaken under emergency or war conditions."

Visualizing the program as ten times the magnitude of the synthetic rubber program developed during the war, Krug added:

"It should be undertaken now when the country is at peace and completed over a period of 5 to 10 years."

Krug made his proposal on the basis of a lengthy report outlining what already has been accomplished in the field of synthetic fuel research.

Besides the work already done with oil shale and coal, Krug reported that an ingredient found in corn cobs can be converted into a type of sugar and subsequently fermented into alcohol fuels.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has asked Congress for authority to utilize a war plant at Muscatine, Iowa, for commercial scale experiments in using agricultural products for fuel.

Krug said the Bureau of Mines' oil shale pilot plant at Rifle, Colo., has now selling about 50 barrels of crude shale oil a day since last May. Cost records indicate, he said, that oil could be produced on a commercial scale at about $2 to $2.50 a barrel.

The quality, he said, would not compare favorably with natural petroleum now selling at those prices but would be "easily competitive" if "the recent trends toward price increases continues."

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Jan. 26—The congregation of the Port Ewen Reformed Church held its annual meeting in the church hall Friday night. The following officers were elected: Floyd Beesmer, Robert Fairbrother elders; Ray Lounsbury, Arthur Windram, Harry Secor, deacons. Reports or organizations were submitted and reflected the success of the efforts made in 1947. Preceding the meeting a supper was served to 56 members. Moving pictures were shown by the Rev. Herbert Killinder, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, Kingston, after the meeting and were greatly enjoyed by all present.

Kemble Is Held On Abortion Count

Arrest Is Based on Paper Signed by Girl, 19; Barber Detained

Urban T. Kemble of Lucas avenue extension was arrested today on a charge of abortion following the arrest yesterday in Ellenville of Daniel Picciotti, 29, an Ellenville barber, on a similar charge.

The barber was arrested on information signed by Chief of Police Richard A. Porter of Ellenville and Kemble on a warrant issued by Police Justice Benjamin Lonstein on information signed by Angelina Paden, 19, of 42 North Main street, Ellenville, and executed by Deputy William Frost and County Identification Officer Leonard Bellmore.

Both were arraigned today before Lonstein where they waived examination to be held for the grand jury. Bail was fixed at $1,000 for Picciotti, but had not been raised early this afternoon. No announcement as to the fixing of bail for Kemble was made by the authorities.

Chief of Police Porter notified District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn of the case Friday and Sheriff George C. Smith subsequently notified to assist in obtaining information. The sheriff and Special Investigator Clayton Vredenburg went to Ellenville Friday.

The authorities said today that they first learned of the case after the Paden girl had told a story to a woman in the village. The information in turn, they said, was relayed to the chief of police, who acted in the arrest of Picciotti.

The alleged illegal act, the authorities said, was committed about a week ago.

Ellenville, the police said, had been operating the barber shop of Harry Solman on Market street, Ellenville, while the owner was in Florida. He had been a resident of Ellenville for about two years, they said, and also lived at 42 North Main street.

Kemble was held for abortion in 1942, according to records of the authority, and was later exonerated after trial.

Food Package Will Return Nazi Skipper's Courtesy

Los Angeles, Jan. 26 (AP)—Konstantin Flink, skipper of American cargo vessels during the war, is sending a food package to Germany to repay a wartime favor of a Nazi submarine commander.

Capt. Flink, who lives in nearby Costa Mesa, is sending the package to Helmut Witte, now a metal worker at Bonn and the background, as told to a reporter, is this:

The American skipper commanded the cargo ship Star of Scotland on its last voyage. The trip ended 1,000 miles off South Africa on Nov. 13, 1942, when a Nazi sub shelled and sank the vessel.

Flink stayed behind to destroy valuable papers while his inexperienced 16-man crew escaped in a lifeboat. The sub, commanded by Captain Witte, now the metal worker, picked up Flink and took the lifeboat and the crew in tow.

Realizing that the green crew could never make land without their skipper, Captain Witte released Flink after the American promised never to command another ship against Germany. The U-boat commander also gave his prisoners food and water for the trip.

Flink kept his promise after the lifeboat brought the men to safety at Portuguese Angola 18 days later. He never again commanded a ship against Germany.

But the promise did not include Japan and he took over another merchant cargo ship carrying supplies to the Pacific.

Several days ago Flink received a letter. It was from the former sub officer and said:

"Do you recall that although my orders were to take you prisoner, for the sake of your men I allowed you to go free and we shook hands, saying that after the war we may be friends?"

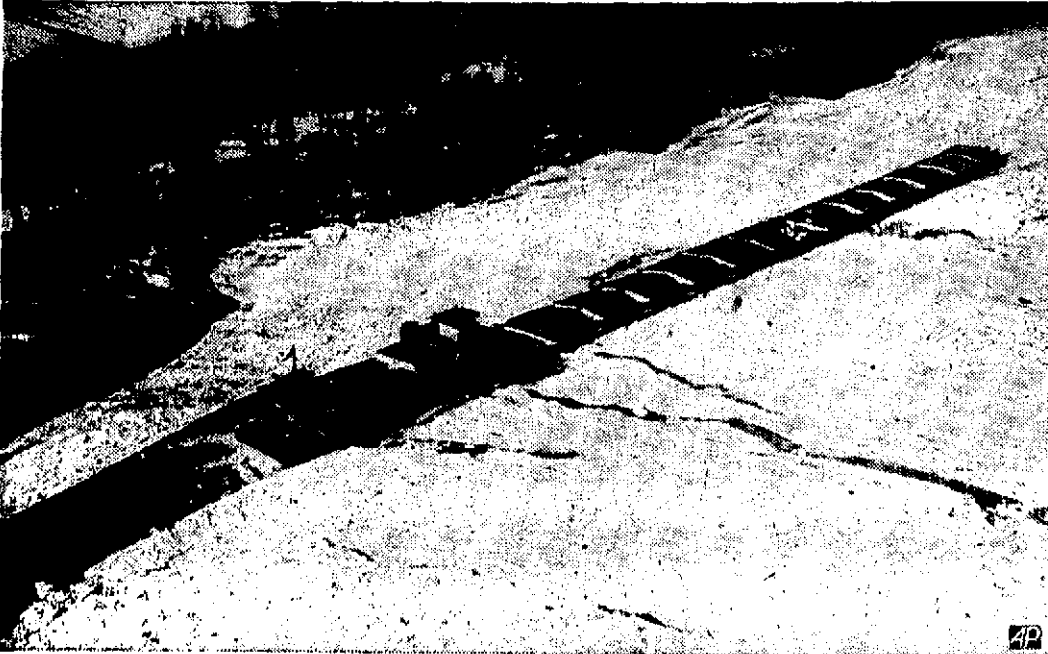

"I shake your hand with this letter and tell you that there is so little food here and it is difficult to care for my wife and two children. Perhaps you could remember our friendship pledge."

Said Captain Flink: "War is war and there were all kinds of men in it. He was a sailor."

'Heat Pump' Gets Ohio Demonstration

Cleveland, Jan. 26 (AP)—An electric "heat pump" designed to heat a seven-room house in the winter by extracting warmth from the earth or from ordinary tap water went on public display for the first time today at the fifth annual refrigeration and air conditioning exposition.

The machine, scarcely larger than a home refrigerator, was built by the General Engineering & Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis. Two other units are in use in Philadelphia on a test basis, and James Lamb, company service manager, said the production would start this spring. The estimated selling price of the machine was not given.

While on display here the heat pump will draw heat from ordinary tap water, although when installed in the basement of a house the heat would be drawn from the ground through tubing buried five to 15 feet below the surface, Lamb said.

He explained that the earth temperature in Cleveland, only a few feet down, stayed at about 52 degrees and the machine extracted this heat, boosted it by compression and released it in the same way a refrigerator draws heat from the food compartment and releases it outside the box.

In summer, Lamb said, the machine could be reversed to pump heat from the home and "dissipate" it into the earth or the outside air.

Galapagos Volcano Continues to Erupt

San Francisco, Jan. 26 (AP)—A 5,000-foot volcano on the north end of Isabella, largest of the Galapagos Island group, erupted in mid-morning Saturday with a miniature Biskin-like smoke mushroom, radio advices received here said today. The Galapagos are about 700 miles west of Ecuador.

The eruption was continuing undiminished, reported Frank Adams, radio operator aboard the San Diego, Calif., tug clipper, Endeavor, anchored nearby at Albemarle reef.

Adams said daytime observation was restricted by smoke and haze but that flaming lava flowing eastwardly outlined the whole mountainside after dark. He said the last confirmed eruption of the unnamed volcano was believed to be in 1924.

T. P. Wright to Head Cornell Research Unit

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Theodore P. Wright, resigned Civil Aeronautics Administrator, will head the Cornell Research Foundation, beginning about March 1.

Wright's appointment to serve as foundation president and a vice president of Cornell University was approved Saturday at a meeting of the board of trustees in the modern college.

The salary was not announced. In submitting his resignation recently to President Truman, Wright said he needed for an income "substantially above" the $10,000 a year the C.A.A. post brought him. He also cited an apparent unlikelihood of advancement there.

Wright's chief job will be administrative supervision of the Cornell aeronautical laboratory at Buffalo, which was a gift of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation. Seven other northeastern aircraft companies have provided working capital for the laboratory, where 576 scientists and technicians are engaged in research for the government and the industry.

White Race May Give Way To Colored Strain in World

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—A question whether evolution will give world dominance to some colored race to replace the Caucasians who may exterminate themselves is raised by R. Ruggles Gates, emeritus professor of botany in the University of London, in a new book, "Human Ancestry."

The volume is the first complete history of man's evolution, comprising all the discoveries made since Darwin set up the doctrine of evolution. Gates is a research fellow in biology at Harvard.

The book offers evidence for a new idea about human origins. Man has been considered a single species, coming from one origin. Instead, Prof. Gates' evidence shows several different species of man from different origins. He traces three or four.

Not true also, he says, on the face of the present records, is a widespread scientific dictum that different species can not, or do not, cross-breed. He says these human species did cross-breed.

The human species, once, he says, were as different as lions and tigers, or as gorillas and orang-utans. In evolution there may not be just one missing link, but many.

Three Main Species

He finds three main species of men originating from a half million to a million years ago, one is sinanthropus, or Peking man. From him the fossil bone records show came the Mongolians and the American Indians, both North and South American and possibly the Eskimos.

Second, in Java, was Pithecanthropus, from whom came the Australoid peoples, they developed into many races, including the present Australian bushmen and possibly the Pacific Ocean Melanesians and Polynesians.

Third, in South Africa, was Africanthropus. From this species came a big-brained race of men, that divided. One offshoot appears to be the African negro.

due to adaptation to tropical climate. Hottentots and Bushmen of Africa seem to be present descendants. Their brains are not so large.

Another possible descendant was Cro-Magnon Man who originated in the Sahara when that desert was fertile and rich in animals. Cro-Magnon Man migrated to Europe and came into conflict with Neanderthal Man, and possibly wiped out that race after it had flourished for about 100,000 years.

There was a fourth species, Dawn Man, of Southern England. This human had a smoother skull than Sinanthropus and Pithecanthropus which had heavy ledges of bone across the front and the rear. Cro-Magnon and Neanderthal Men had brains as large as present humans. Prof. Gates says ancient man could make little use of his brain capacity due to the conditions under which he lived.

Progress Due to Experience Probably, he says, no increase in the size of human brains could take place without some reconstruction of the female pelvis.

"In modern man the brain has undergone some increase in structural complexity and efficiency, but there is no reason to suppose that Homo has yet fully exploited the possibilities of his brain."

"Whatever human progress can be claimed for the last 3000 years has not been due to any improvement in intellect or even in moral qualities, but is simply the result of the accumulated knowledge and experience of mankind."

"It remains to be seen whether the Caucasian race will, by self-extermination, make way for the development of some colored race in the Northern Hemisphere, where the climatic conditions are most favorable for the flowering of mankind."

Professor Gates does not say what Caucasians may do to exterminate themselves.

In the evolutionary evidence he finds one dead end. This, the end of a race of a species, came always from getting too gigantic in size. This law of size he says is one of the most widespread laws of animal evolution.

Many species were used as medicine in ancient times.

Fuel Oil, Gasoline Situation Looks Tough for Future

BY SAM DAWSON

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—If you think the oil and gas situation is tough now, look at what some of the men in the oil industry expect in the year ahead:

1. Demand for oil in the United States this year will top last, when shortages and threats of shortages were too common for comfort.

2. A gasoline shortage next summer may grow out of the industry's plan to boost production of fuel oil this winter.

Industry spokesmen think they may be called upon to find 145, 750,000 more barrels of oil this year than last, when they strained transportation and refinery facilities to provide 2,137,300,000 barrels.

The petroleum economists cite the growth of per capita consumption in the United States from 367 gallons in 1911 to 608 in 1947. Total consumption last year was 100 per cent above even the wartime peak. Barring a depression, the demand is expected to rise this year.

The gasoline shortage threat comes from this: To meet the present emergency and provide more heating oil, the industry is being asked to turn a greater percentage of its crude oil into heating fuel and, therefore, less into gasoline.

Some say this may reduce gasoline stocks so much that when warm weather comes the open road again, the gas shortage may be as troublesome as the present heating fuel one.

How does the oil industry think it can meet the problem?

How Economists See It

Petroleum economists of major oil companies look at the production picture this way:

U. S. crude oil production last year averaged 5,082,000 barrels a day. This month the daily average reached the record high of 5,326,137 barrels. The industry's estimates of what it can achieve this year range upward to 5,400,000 barrels a day. To do that it counts on getting more steel or pipelines, tankers and new wells.

Daily demand in 1948, including exports under government quotas is estimated by some as high as 6,250,000 barrels. If the synthetic and natural gasoline plants produce 340,000 barrels a day, there will be a deficit still of around 500,000 barrels a day.

Need Bigger Imports

This will have to be met by imports, or some consumers won't get the oil and gas they want.

Last year we imported 433,000 barrels a day 285,000 of crude oil, 148,000 of residual oil used in steam plants, 12,000 of distillate for heating and Diesels, and 10,000 of assorted petroleum products.

Petroleum economists estimate we will be able to import from 475,000 to 500,000 barrels a day this year, chiefly from the Caribbean area. They count on an increase in available tankers and on Europe's ability to meet more of her needs through rehabilitated refineries and faster delivery of oil from the Middle East.

Location Is Problem

Put refineries and pipelines where they'll give the maximum efficiency and get the most oil per ton of steel, and you'll help the situation most effectively and quickly, they contend.

Build up the eastern hemisphere's ability to supply itself, and you can stop hauling so much oil across the ocean from the western hemisphere.

However, they don't pretend that will solve everyone's troubles at once.

They say theirs is a highly competitive business (34,000 oil companies in the United States) and that there may always be dry spots when the supply-demand situation is as tight as at present.

Distribution difficulties may mean having too much oil in one place when another has too little.

But industry spokesmen still believe the oil companies can meet this year's demands without any real hardship for anyone.

Cardinal Compares Nazi Occupation With Hitler Rule

Cologne, Germany, Jan. 26 (AP)

—Joseph Cardinal Frings, archbishop of Cologne, has likened the four-power occupation of Germany to Hitler's Third Reich and declared its administration "renders democracy ridiculous."

The prelate said the hunger strikes in the British-American zone presented a "spontaneous outburst of the people." He urged speedy increases in allied food imports.

"The situation is desperate," the Cardinal said in an interview. "It cannot long endure."

German officialdom, he said, never will be able to secure food from German farms without a strong police force. The people have no confidence in their own officials, he added.

"Behind every German official stands an American, British, French or Russian soldier," he said. "That is, after all, the same system as the Third Reich, where there were two powers—the ordinary power and the extraordinary one. The bureaucrats (mayors) and other minor officials were the ordinary powers. But behind them stood the Nazi gauleiters (district leaders)."

"The German people regard their officials as marionettes. There are too many of them—104 ministers in this little Germany." The Cardinal said that "only if the Germans receive real power and authority, will there be any real progress."

"The allies must have confidence in us," he said. "We must be trusted that our only intention is to put our people back on its feet."

Will Cut Turkey Output

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)

—The production of turkey in New York will be cut three per cent this year because of low turkey prices and high feed costs, the State Department of Agriculture says. A joint federal-state report predicted yesterday the New York state growers would raise 719,000 turkeys while the nation's output would be 28,470,000.

O'Dwyer Will Speak

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Mayor William O'Dwyer is listed as principal speaker by sponsors of a meeting next Thursday of New York city business, labor and civic organizations opposed to the St. Lawrence seaway project. The Commerce and Industry Association of New York also said yesterday that Thomas A. Murray, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, will speak at the meeting. Thomas J. Mile, secretary of the association, said the meeting has been called to "spark opposition on a national scale" against the water navigation and power project now pending in Congress.

"North Atlantic League Doesn't Want Kingston"--E. C. Landgraf

N. A. L. Scores Lapolla for Illegal Action: 'Will Not Pay Nyack to Quit'

"The North Atlantic League does not want Kingston as a member."

With that brusque statement, Ernest C. "Duke" Landgraf, president of the North Atlantic League, neatly pinned back the ears of Ray Lapolla, Peckskill Highlander business manager, who has been heading a one-man movement to return Kingston to the N.A.L. fold.

Landgraf dealt the death blow to revived hopes of returning Kingston to the 1948 N.A.L. setup by taking a slap at Lapolla for acting without the authority of the league.

The famous Kingston-hater, Mr. Landgraf raked Lapolla for suggesting that Nyack quit and the league buy up the franchise for delivery gratis to Kingston.

Said Landgraf:

"The league does not want Kingston as a member. Last year Kingston did not support a pennant winning team and what will happen if the city got a third or fourth place club? In addition, Kingston is located so far from the rest of the league cities that traveling expenses are high. Mahanoy City's team has to travel 175 miles to reach Kingston."

No Pay for "Quits"

"If Nyack quits the North Atlantic League they'll quit of their own accord but we're not paying them to get out," Landgraf said.

Commenting on a recent statement made by Ray Lapolla, Landgraf said by long distance telephone from his home in Allentown, Pa.:

"Lapolla has no business offering league franchises free or otherwise to anybody. He is merely an employee of the Peckskill club and not a league official or director. He acted unwisely and without any authority. The league will take action to quiet him. If Nyack quits the North Atlantic League, we're not going to pay them to get out."

Mr. Landgraf's statement was in reply to a letter released last week by Lapolla that the league planned to buy the franchise from Nyack officials and present it to Kingston in order that the league might retain two cities in New York state.

Negotiations Alive

Gate Maun, business manager of the Class B Poughkeepsie club of the Colonial League had this to say on the subject:

"No doubt it would be of benefit to the North Atlantic League and of greater benefit to the Peckskill club if the Nyack franchise remained in the New York state. However, if any Kingston group wishes to obtain the franchise, they must deal with Nyack officials and then get the approval of the league for the transfer. It seems very unlikely that the league would give a franchise and then give it to Kingston for nothing."

"Kingston should be able to support a club in organized baseball, and it is generally agreed that hadn't Poughkeepsie obtained a franchise in Class B ball, Kingston would have had a greater attendance last season."

Maun added significantly: "The Colonial League has been in contact with the Kingston Recreation Department and hope that they will join the Class B circuit."

Williams-Dawson In Return Bout

Philadelphia, Jan. 26 (AP)—Lightweight champion Ike Williams is a heavy favorite to whip Freddy Dawson, of Chicago, tonight in their 10-round non-title fight but he may be glad his title is not on the line before this third round against the windy city mittman is over.

Dawson has won eight straight bouts, the last four by knockouts and he's been no shrinking violet in predicting, openly he'll set the champion up for a lullaby. The last time the two fighters met on Jan. 28, 1946, Dawson held Williams to a draw in a bitterly fought battle.

Locke's Rally Cops $10,000 Phoenix Open

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 26 (AP)—South Africa's Bobby Locke ran into as stiff a golfing test as any he has faced in winning the Phoenix Open yesterday, but his brilliant recoveries and cool headed playing earned him a one-stroke victory over smiling Jim Demaret.

The visitor from Johannesburg went around the 6,378-yard Phoenix Country Club course in 67:67 in the final 36 holes of the 72-hole test for the $2,000 first prize money.

Locke's 72-hole total of 268 eclipsed two strokes off the previous mark for the $10,000 tournament, held by last year's winner, Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who finished well back of the leaders this year.

Demaret, last year's leading money winner on the P. G. A. tour, made $14,000 while the $1,000 third place prize was taken by Lloyd Mangrum who stuck close to the other two stars throughout.

Demaret of Jal, Calif., took a three-stroke lead over the other two at the end of the second round and maintained the lead through a third round total of 138.

But the pressure got him on the last 18 and he reported with par 71.

Locke, on the other hand, plugged methodically away at his self-assigned task of taking the course apart and the only difference between his morning and afternoon rounds was the brilliance of his

Olympic Hockey Muddle Still Unsettled

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Jan. 26 (AP)—A usually reliable informant said today members of the International Olympic Committee had told the Swiss they must ban the United States Amateur Hockey Association team from the winter games.

The A.H.A. squad has been recognized by the Swiss organizing committee as the official U. S. representative in the games—an action strongly protested by the U. S. Olympic Committee, which has entered its own team.

If the A.H.A. is barred, indications are the International Hockey Federation may order all its teams out of the competition.

This would be a hard blow to the box office-conscious Swiss since hockey is the big money sport of the games. Some 60,000 fans are counted on to watch the semi-finals and finals.

The Swiss have put new pressure on the Americans to reach a compromise but apparently to no avail.

Hotel Ulsters were stopped by the Poughkeepsie Fog-Nash in the middle set despite a 1007 score; Hynes Shoes won 2-1 over Saugerties Recreation; while Van Kleock's dropped three in Walden.

Harold Brookie moved into the 190 average bracket with a sparkling 672 on games of 221, 225, 226 for the Ulsters who tallied 3037. Poughkeepsie had a 1027 middle effort and 2887 overall.

Johnny Ferraro posted 211-218, 208-637; John Schatzel rolled 236-603; Randy Keldner 207-204. Jerry Tenhouse anchored Fog-Nash with 256-640; L. Eckert posted 201; R. Rathbun 216-531; F. Johnson 206 and Dick Rhea 221-233-626.

Buddy Van Amburg's 203-225-190-618 led Walden's conquest of Van Kleock's who failed to register a 200 game. Paul Bazany also was over "600" with 206-210-608 for the winners.

S. & C. Lunch Leads

The S. & C. Lunch keglers clung to a one-game lead in the Mixed League despite a two game loss to the Igloo Restaurant. Ralph Lehman topped the winners with 184-502. Evelyn Moore shot 203-520 and Charlie Tiano 223-200-537 for S. & C. ...

Capitol Cleaners beat Town Cafe 2-1 as Jake Chichelsky, bowler-scribe, missed the coveted "600" by a single pin. Jake hammered the pot-bellied maples for 136-232-171. Marge Bonnet shot 494. John Schatzel rolled 218-533. Other high scores: Perc Slover 222-549; Marge Jansen 179-501; Evelyn Francis 194-501; Jim Lowe 204-210-592.

West Point Relays Feature Four Middle Distance Marks

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—Four new meet records for the fifth annual West Point relays were in the book today, but the individual spotlight was on Army's brilliant quarter-miler, John Hammack, the Cadets' chief Olympic prospect.

Hammack was anchor man as army won both the 1200-yard and 2400-yard relay events in record-smashing times Saturday in a meet that drew more than 300 athletes from 18 colleges.

Jim Cavanaugh, speedy sophomore miler from Manhattan College, and the Manhattan 2400-yard shuttle relay quartet established the other new records.

In the 2400 relay, Hammack received the baton 10 yards in arrears, and finished his 600-yard stint in a smashing 1:11, a good 10 yards in front of his Yale opponent. Manhattan finished third. Other Army men on the team were Michael De Armond, David Bolte and Charles Kessler. The time was 4:55.6, compared with 5:04.2, set by Army a year ago, when Hammack also was in the lineup.

Set Other Marks

The other Army mark was set in the first heat of the 1200, with Hammack anchoring behind Ed Wagner, Ed Mastaglio and Charlie Nash. The time was 2:08.9. The old record of 2:10.2 also was made in 1947 by a Cadet quartet, which included Hammack and Nash.

In the 1200-yard final, the Army quartet posted a winning time of 2:10.5.

Cavanaugh was closed in 4:24.2, which broke the 4:31 mark of John Plinter, also Manhattan, set a year ago.

The Manhattan hurdlers, Tom Byrnes, Bill Drew, Don Sullivan and Phil Einesman, skipped over the barriers in 31 seconds to crack their own 31.7 record of 1947.

Houghtaling Scores 42; Chez Emile Piles Up 103

Seasonal Highs Set in Y Loop

"Snitz" Houghtaling shattered the individual scoring record for the season in the Y League with a 42-point blast against Potter Brothers, while his Chez Emile teammates ran up a record 103-43 tally against Potter Brothers.

The 103 points represent one of the highest point totals in the history of the Y circuit.

In the companion piece Sickler's Delivery maintained its league leadership with a crushing 81-56 conquest of Skyline.

Sinks 21 Buckets

Houghtaling connected for 21 buckets in Chez Emile's annihilation of the Potter cagers. "Snitz" McElrath was second with a modest 25 markers, while Link Crosby unloaded nine ducats.

Cheez Emile led 53-23 at halftime and ran riot after the recess to pile up fifty baskets, tallying only three points from the foul line. "Red" Gorsline was high for the losers with 14 points.

Hughes dropped in 12 points and Priest had 10.

Sickler's threw in ten men against Skyline and every one found the range in a blistering second half drive after respectable 34-23 bludge at halftime.

George Bloom capped high scoring honors with 19 points. Emick hit double figures with 14 and Thomas netted 11. Jordan, Skyline forward, was high for the game with 21.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

DUNKING
Many questions have been asked about dunking. Whether there is a new tolerance for it I cannot answer. The following letter is typical: "To settle a dispute, will you please tell us if dunking is being accepted as good table manners? Is it all right to let children acquire the habit?"

Dunking—so some of my readers tell me—is an approved practice in certain sections of the country. According to etiquette, "dunking" is about the same as eating chicken with the fingers. If you must dunk, then break the bread or doughnut in half so as to dip only a narrow piece. Quite properly, a mouthful should be broken off at a time, dropped into the liquid and eaten with your spoon.

Whether one may take dry food into one's mouth and then, before swallowing this, follow it with liquid is a question of quantity. A very small piece of bread, followed by no more than a sip of liquid is quite all right. But to take a large piece and then completely fill the mouth with liquid would be revolting.

Proper Wedding For Divorcee

Dear Mrs. Post: Consternation struck our community a few days ago when invitations were received for the marriage of a young divorcee. We are told everything is to be the same as at her previous wedding. Ceremony at the church, reception, same design of wedding cake, same guest list—except for the new groom's list. Tell us, please, (1) Is this correct according to the streamlined version of etiquette? (2) Are we, who went to her first wedding expected to send a second wedding gift?

Answer: (1) Not entirely. Obviously, she may not wear a bridal veil, nor carry orange blossoms. Nor should she have more than a single attendant. (2) No, unless you want to. In other words, presents certainly are not expected from those who sent presents before.

What To Send Debutante

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it customary for a man to send a young girl a telegram of congratulations when not able to go to her debut?

Answer: It would be nicer to send a bouquet if he can afford it. If he can't, a telegram would be proper.

A number of forms that can be used to announce the engagement are given in Mrs. Post's leaflet, "Announcing the Engagement." To obtain this leaflet, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

North Carolina reported six deaths, attributed to the cold. South Carolina two, and Georgia one.

Chill weather also continued on the west coast, with temperatures generally in the 40's. Fresno, Calif., had an early low of 44 today, and San Francisco 47.

The new cold wave moving across the north central states would moderate and have little to sting the Great Lakes region, the Weather Bureau said. Temperatures in Chicago were expected to remain well above zero.

While the rest of the nation shivered yesterday, public beaches in Miami, Fla., reported the largest turnout of the season with a sunny 75-degree day.

Farley Says Time

continue its efforts to bring industry here, which would employ men. At the present time there are four or five good prospects, he declared. Mr. Stekete also announced that plans would be formulated to have the business men of the city have a voice in civic development.

Harold V. Clayton, past president, who now is vice president of the Rome Trust Company, briefly declared the record of the past year spoke for itself and he assumed full responsibility for securing the most recent executive secretary, who resigned.

Arthur J. Laudlaw was the toastmaster and he introduced the guests, who included Senator A. H. Wick, Assemblyman John Wadlin, Rabbi Plotke, Thomas Plunkett, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Reformed Church, gave the invocation. The benediction was pronounced by the Right Rev. Mgr. M. J. Drury.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Garraghan, who said that Jim Farley brought more good will to the United States than any other personage. He also paid a high tribute to Mr. Farley's mother.

Farley's Address

Following is the text of the address delivered by Mr. Farley:

I am happy to meet with the businessmen and civic leaders here tonight. Never was there more need of such leadership as this body is giving to its city, its state and nation. Our major problem is production, and it is up to American business to meet that problem with vigor and vision. I congratulate your organization and wish for you a prosperous and productive New Year.

We might today, in discussing our policies and planning our future, be tempted to look at our ideas from the faith of some of our statesmen of other days, for their ideas live on. The dangers we face they always saw. The remedies for our present ills were what they believed. Their spirit can carry us through, if we are as loyal to that spirit as they were to theirs.

Frankness and intellectual honesty, above all, are needed in these times. Time serving and face saving in public office only deepens the crisis. The fact is, these times call for plain speech and courageous action.

Many of our great leaders of the past were independent but they believed in party government. A man cannot serve by himself alone. He serves when he works shoulder to shoulder with like-minded men. If all go our separate political ways we shall be lost in a wilderness. We shall be the prey to alien and domestic enemies.

Should Belong to Party

We should belong to a party—some party. When our party is wrong we should say so and we should try to make it right. Sometimes that way is hard. We may be misunderstood for a time, but in the long run a party is controlled by the best blood within it. In the long run, a party comes back to its best traditions. In the long run, it finds its way home. That should be the faith of all of us, whatever party we join.

We have already heard of the rise of a new party. So far it seems to be a one-man party. Perhaps it will end as a one-man party. It is significant that the founder of this new party has in one lifetime already been for a few years in each of the old parties. In neither party has he found happiness. We may only hope that now that he has a party of his own he can be happy in it and be loyal to it.

Another great principle for which our great statesmen of former days stood was sound finance and sound economic administration of government. In these days we are in great need of the lessons taught by them in keeping our country on the road to stability and prosperity. A great war and great foreign demands since that war have given us employment and a full measure of prosperity. Our task now is to see that we can sustain this high level of production and jobs without the old familiar slide down into the depths of depression. Never was it so essential to do this, because our whole influence in the world depends upon our remaining strong and stable. The Communist world is eagerly expecting that economic trouble at home will weaken us abroad. We must disappoint that hope at all costs.

This effort to avoid economic disaster should, in the last analysis, be no mere party issue. It ought to be an American issue. We must find the means of ending inflation without destroying freedom of enterprise, and we ought to do it without seeking partisan advantage.

One of the basic principles of a great American statesman was that while government could do of government might destroy confidence and retard natural economic progress it could not provide a substitute for economic progress. The great ideal of government ought to be to discover the needs and trends of free enterprise and to lend what aid it can to further these needs and trends. Government spending can never be a real and lasting substitute for private investment and venture capital. Taxation should be used for two purposes—to gather revenue for the legitimate expenses of government and to promote the essential expansion of our industrial production through private funds. Taxation should not be an instrument for redistributing wealth or for political advantage.

Moreover, we should, in times like this, when government revenues are high, attempt to reduce, not increase, the cost of government. Whatever can be saved should be saved here and now, for we cannot be assured that our national income will always remain at the immense and unprecedented levels it has now reached. I am not one of those who indulge in vain hopes or gloomy predictions of the future. Last year, many of our experts were predicting a great recession of business in 1947. They little reckoned on the great productive capacity of the American people. They made the mistake of selling the United States short. They were proved to be wrong.

But because they were wrong and because we ended the year prosperously, we must not assume that good times are to be with us always and that we need not exercise all prudence and energy. We can move forward if we are alert and if we work as we should.

The great demands of our people and the vast needs of Europe and Asia require production and yet more production. We cannot constantly reduce our work hours and increase our leisure hours without causing trouble. Labor and management must work shoulder to shoulder at the task of lifting our standard of living through the making of the goods necessary to that standard of living. A man does not attain a full life by a full pay envelope alone. His life is made up of what his money will buy.

Our greatest inflationary problem is in the realm of food. From August, 1939, to August, 1947, farm products rose nearly two hundred per cent. Food rose 140 per cent. But the products of machines such as motor vehicles, metal products, house furnishings and agricultural implements rose on an average, less than fifty per cent. (These figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics.)

Thus, the most serious problem before us in the price of what we eat and drink. The prospects for checking inflation in that direction are not particularly dark.

In 1947, European crops were worse than 1946. In matters worse, our own corn crop was 850 million bushels less than in the preceding year. We had a better wheat crop but that did not make up the difference. All of this means that our meat supply will be shorter and shorter for some time. I think we have every reason to believe that the food situation will be very much better this year. I am optimistic enough to believe that we will not have two successive years of bad corn crops. Moreover, there will be less demand for corn for animal feeding, because there will be fewer animals.

The wheat prospects are not so good as last year, but they are far above the prewar average. The new estimates of the wheat crop now aimed at 1,300,000,000 bushels. This is 50 per cent higher than before the war. The Canadian wheat crop looks good. And the Argentinian wheat crop is already larger than was anticipated.

In Europe, the crop prospects are better than they were last year and the year before. More acres are being planted. The winter weather has been more favorable. Europe has more fertilizers and better seeds than last year.

Over the world the situation in fats and oils is better. Rice prospects are somewhat better than last year, especially in places like Burma.

Even Russia is going to export a large amount of grain. Some of this will go to England, and that will relieve us of our burden.

In the face of these favorable prospects, it is not rash to believe that the inflationary trend may be checked by natural causes. I am not a business prophet, but I am certainly able to distinguish between a good prophet and a bad prophet a year after the facts are in. As you remember, a year ago many of our economists were telling us that 1947 would be very bad, especially in the latter part of the year. The prophets were all wrong. They are not prophesying with such certainty this year, and perhaps that should be a note of warning to us. I certainly would be frightened if they were all predicting good business for the whole year, because they have been so wrong in the past.

However, I find among reliable businessmen a note of caution, particularly with reference to the second half of the year. The spirit of caution is a very good thing, because it will mean careful inspection of all the signs and careful control of inventory and present investments.

Since the President's budget has got itself involved in a political controversy, I shall limit my comments on government expenditure to a few very general remarks. I am not in the administration and I am not in Congress and, therefore, I can look upon detachment. It seems to me, however, that at this time, if we may be wise to defer as much of the government expenditures as possible and perhaps hold them for a period, later on, when there is greater unemployment and greater need for stimulating business.

National Defense

It is not wise, however, in the troubled state of the world to economize in matters that affect our national defense. We are in a world in which our diplomacy must be firmly backed up by undiminished strength. We should maintain our navy in a state of the highest efficiency and provide for a sound and national system of military training. Whether this is to be based on conscription or not is a matter for Congress, after a careful examination of the facts, to determine. Above all, however, we must not starve those agencies in our military services which are developing higher and higher degrees of scientific perfection. The next war, if it must come, will be a clash of scientific and mechanical inventions and developments. We have led the world in this field and we must continue to lead it, not only as a measure of national defense, but as a sound measure for production in civil life.

I am sure that the great leadership of the past were fully aware of the general principles of the Marshall Plan. They would believe that the great power of this country, of necessity, would project it deeper and deeper into the affairs of the world. We cannot remain safe and prosperous in this country if Europe is permitted to disintegrate and to fall into the hands of Communism. We must lend a strong hand in preserving in Western Europe ideals and institutions from which we derived our own principles and system of government. President Truman and General Marshall have proposed a plan which utilizes to the full the cooperation of these countries and also offers to them material means of recovery.

This is not a party question, nor is it a question that ought to be thrown into the arena of partisan debate. We are asked to provide assistance over a period of years and to fix the amount of our assistance for the first 16 months at something over six billion dollars. Those of us who are not in the government are free to ascertain all the facts that are involved, and I have confidence that our congressional leaders in both parties will ultimately make a wise judgment in this vital matter.

Whether Congress can or should pledge any amount for the years beyond July, 1949, is beside the question. The important thing, it seems to me, is to agree on principles of wise help to Europe in attaining recovery and in building up free institutions as long as that may be necessary. We can determine that as we go, if we agree on the principles now.

However, it is not the amount of aid that we give that is most significant. It is the way it is to be given. We must avoid as far as possible the mere subsidizing of governments through the careless giving of money and goods. Our aid ought to be built into the vital economic structure of these countries. If France, Italy and other countries have sound and productive economies, we can be assured that a prosperous people will not turn to Communism. They will support governments based on principles of freedom, justice and fair representation of all groups. Communism grows only in confusion.

Free Enterprise

I am convinced, therefore, that in setting up the administrative machinery to conduct our European aid we should draw into its management some of the best administrative talent of the best administrative minds of the best administrative systems we have. We must look for management and direction to those who have successfully managed and directed great productive enterprises in the United States. In setting up this plan, we ought to have the trained and experienced advice of men like E. M. Baruch, Herbert Hoover and many others. I might mention that these men ought to be drawn into this service regardless of the party to which they owe allegiance.

And we ought to make sure, in setting up this program, that every dollar that is not needed for the actual relief of hunger and cold is used to build productive enterprise so that Europe will ultimately attain a sustaining basis.

Along with all this economic help should be the wisest and the most trained service in the diplomatic field. The time is past when we can look upon the foreign service of the United States as a minor part of the government. We need training of the most intensive sort in our institutions of learning and in our government to see that those who represent us abroad truly stand for all that is best in American life.

I have had some experience in the field of exports, and in the course of my business I have traveled over the past years in most of the civilized countries in the world. I have met hundreds of foreign businessmen abroad. And I have come to realize how important it is to develop the best brains in matters relating to foreign service—both in business and in government. The greatest export that this country can provide is an export of brains.

With respect to that, I think we might be guided by the spirit of Virginia's great educator—Thomas Jefferson. I need not remind you that Jefferson gave the last and best years of his life not to public service but to the development of education. It was his firm belief that free government could survive only with an educated citizenship. In the educational system that he conceived there was to be not only training of average citizens but the training of leaders. That is why he conceived the great idea of the state and university. The idea that has gone out from Virginia and has permeated every state in the union. In this state, a subject of discussion now is the establishment of a state university. This idea, which is so vital in this year of 1948 in the state of New York is a direct outgrowth of the thinking of Thomas Jefferson.

America is launched upon a career of world-wide influence and activity. In this we are not following the lines of the old imperialistic exploitation. When the Roman empire stretched its power over the world it was in pursuit of selfish gain. Wherever it went it exacted tribute from conquered states. The same thing was true of the Spanish empire of 400 years ago. And it was true of the British empire in its earlier stages.

Unselfish Policy

Americans must avoid this mistake that in every case that I have mentioned brought proud empires down to death and dissolution. While we cannot avoid the enormous spread of our influence, we must win the confidence and respect of the peoples with whom we come in contact. At the present moment we are manifesting what may be called "imperialism in reverse." Instead of exploiting those countries with which we come in contact we are offering help. There is no reason why we cannot continue this wise and unselfish policy. We have at home and the greatest sources of wealth in the world. We can, if we maintain a sound economic system and retain the blessings of political liberty, support ourselves at home on a continually rising standard of living and at the same time stabilize the world. Wherever our goods are sold throughout the world we want those who buy them to know that they are getting full value and that we are seeking no selfish ends.

It is this vision of constructive international cooperation that should enlighten our public policies. The great statesmen of the past stood for this kind of foreign policy. It is for us, upon whom the responsibilities of a new generation have fallen, to continue this enlightened policy. The tasks ahead of us are very great but with the light of the past to guide us and with the firm determination to be loyal to our traditions we can move on to increased influence and sound and stable peace.

The 42-year-old Panyushkin is the Sixth Soviet envoy to Washington. He succeeds Nikolai V. Novikov who was recalled to Moscow in November after 17 months at his post.

During the interview, the bespectacled ambassador said through an interpreter that he likes to ride horseback, ski and play tennis when he relaxes from his diplomatic chores.

In the evening, he likes to see "a good movie" or play or sit by his fireplace and read. He finished John Steinbeck's, "The Grapes of Wrath" only a few days ago. "A very good book," he said of the 1939 novel based on the westward migration of Oklahoma dust bowl victims.

Week-End Snowfall Is 7 to 16 Inches in County

From seven to 16 inches of new snow fell in Ulster county Saturday afternoon and evening, causing delay in highway and railroad traffic.

Heaviest snowfall in this county was in the Pine Hill area, where County Highway Department employees reported 16 inches. County plows were working all night Saturday and until Sunday afternoon, when the crews returned for a rest. The plows are now operating again, widening highways already plowed.

Sunday morning Troop C, New York State Police, cautioned all motorists against any but the most necessary travel, and said that the use of chains was a "must."

New York Central Railroad trains on the West Shore division were reported from one to three hours behind schedule all day Sunday, and are still running about one-half hour late at the Kingston station. On the main line at Poughkeepsie, officials reported the trains "hours behind schedule" late Saturday night.

Work of snow removal was hampered by intense cold and a high wind causing drifts. Temperatures in the county were reported to be from zero to minus 10 Saturday night.

Temperatures throughout the county did not reach the previous lows for this year established on Monday, January 19, but hovered between three and ten degrees below zero. In Kingston, the thermometer dropped to minus three degrees about 7 a. m. today, while at the Ashokan reservoir, a low of 13 degrees below was reported on Saturday morning, and a low of minus 10 on Sunday morning, according to the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

In Kingston, pedestrians were warned of danger of icicles, which on some buildings reached a length of 10 feet, according to reports received at police headquarters.

In Kingston, the Board of Public Works sent plows out at 5 p. m. Saturday, with all plows operating by 6 p. m. Crews remained out until 4 p. m. on Sunday, with one plow being kept on duty after that hour to handle snow which had blown back into the streets.

Today the Board of Public Works reported, two snow loaders will be busy all day removing snow. At 11 o'clock tonight, loaders will remove snow from the business sections.

General Secretary Burton Tandy of the Kingston Y.M.C.A. said this morning that sometime during Sunday night a section of tile on the swimming pool wall in that building had collapsed. He said that this was probably due to expansion and contraction of the cold weather conditions. He added that the program of recreation at the Y.M.C.A. will not be interrupted.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

The greater the expert, the greater is his ability to count a hand down. It will take a little time to count today's hand down, provided you cover the East and West cards.

As soon as the opening lead is made you know you have two heart tricks, four spade tricks, a diamond and the ace of clubs—eight tricks. If not, you might call it hard luck, but if your partner is a good player he will want to know why you did not count the hand down and play it correctly.

The opening lead should be allowed to ride to South's queen and the next play should be a small diamond. When West plays the king, do not go up with dummy's ace. The king may be a singleton, but if it happens to be shows out, you have your first count on the hand.

Your next play is to cash the ace of diamonds, and West shows out. At this point, therefore, you know that East has five diamonds and one heart. Now lead a spade from dummy to the queen, then the small spade to the ace and return to your hand by leading a small spade.

If East has four spades you will have to depend on the club finesse. However, East and West both follow, and you have a perfect count on the East hand—three spades, a singleton heart, five diamonds and four clubs. It is therefore perfectly safe to throw East in the lead with a diamond, because all he can do is cash three diamond tricks, then lead a club.

Thus by counting the hand down the expert eliminates an unnecessary and losing finesse.

Resolution to Ask Study of Treatment

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—A resolution will be introduced in the Legislature tonight calling for a study of the treatment of sex crime offenders.

Senator Seymour Halpern and Assemblyman Samuel Rubin, Queens Republicans, will sponsor the measure.

In doing so, they said today, they are carrying out the expressed wishes of Governor Dewey to develop a good system of handling sex offenses.

The legislators recalled that Dewey said in vetoing a similar bill last year, introduced by Senator Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh: "The problem to which this subject is directed is one of the most serious in the field of criminology. Nevertheless, despite our lack of a proper system for handling the problems, we are not justified in engaging upon any program which is not reasonably sound and properly considered, and most certainly, in the process we should not demolish the important safeguards that surround personal liberty in our state."

"I am most anxious that we continue our efforts to develop a good system for the handling of the sexual psychopaths."

No Call Desired
Baltimore, Jan. 26 (AP)—Vice-president William J. SINGS WITH 'ARTIFICIAL THROAT'

Girl, 16, Makes Debut as Singer

New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—A 16-year-old girl, who was left speechless six years ago after a tonsil operation, made her professional debut as a coloratura yesterday singing through an artificial throat on a radio program.

Jeannine McDonald, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Edwin L. McDonald, of Louisville, Ky., sang "Let My Song Fill Your Heart" on the nationwide (M.B.S.) program "My Favorite Kid."

Scars tissue closed her throat after a tonsillectomy when she was ten years old, and for a year she breathed through a tube. Several more operations failed to restore her speech.

Recovery started five years ago when she was operated on by a Memphis, Tenn., physician who inserted an artificial throat.

She won high honors in the Kentucky annual state music meet last spring, and was chosen for the radio program as "A teenager who has overcome great handicaps."

The girl is to be auditioned tomorrow by the Metropolitan Opera Company.

MacArthur Says He Has No Plans To Return to U. S.

Tokyo, Jan. 26 (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur said today he would stay in Japan until his task is completed, unless called away by some "extraordinary occurrence."

The supreme commander of Allied powers in Japan repeated, on his 68th birthday, what he said last year—he wants to return to the United States when his job here is done.

Hale, hearty and erect, MacArthur in an exclusive interview did not explain what he meant by "extraordinary occurrence." Nor did he mention efforts in the United States to enter his name as a Republican candidate for the presidency.

There was no reference to a statement broadcast by Columnist Walter Winchell in the United States Sunday night that MacArthur would return to America March 15, about two weeks before the Wisconsin primary. MacArthur's office, when asked specifically about Winchell's report, said the general had no new plans to go home.

MacArthur's faith in the Japanese remains as constant and as firm as his handshake. He indicated a firm belief in the righteousness of his course in Japan.

He observed Christmas, Thanksgiving and the Fourth of July—by working the same schedule which keeps him in his office overlooking the Imperial palace grounds up to eight hours daily.

His work here has not blunted his interest in world events. But Japan remains his major interest. He has an almost passionate conviction that the principles of human freedom and Christian concepts which the United States espouses will supplant the feudal system in Japan.

MacArthur believes that if those ideals take root here, the balance of the Orient will swing, slowly, in the same direction.

AFL Will Attempt Deep Dive Politically

Miami, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—The A. F. L. leadership assembled today to make the deepest plunge into national politics it ever has attempted, with repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act as its prime announced objective.

The 15-man executive council went into mid-winter session, to be climaxed February 4 with a meeting of the federation's full-dress political strategy group of 30 members.

President William Green, who hopes to raise $50,000 in voluntary contributions from federation members to finance the A. F. L.'s political activities, says the newly-formed "Labor's Political Education League" may even go so far as to endorse a presidential candidate this time.

In other years the A. F. L. has scarcely dipped its toes in the swirling current of a presidential contest. Principally, however, the A. F. L. and C. I. O. both will concentrate on congress.

The C. I. O. executive board last week opposed the third party bid of Henry A. Wallace for president, and the action was seconded by the executive board of the C. I. O. Political Action Committee.

The A. F. L. council may decide to hold off a declaration on the third party until its February 4 meeting, in the opinion of some members.

Green himself threw no light on his plans. A total of 22 subjects are listed for consideration of the union leaders, including selection of a director for the political league.

Aside from politics, major topics include the A. F. L.'s new role in pushing the Marshall European recovery program among trade unionists or Western Europe, and in working for a major new federation of friendly labor groups in Latin America.

Detroit and Chicago are built on the beds of subsiding lakes.

The Weather

MONDAY, JAN. 26, 1949
Sun rises at 7:19 a. m.; sun sets at 5:07 p. m. E.S.T.
Weather, clear.

The Temperature
The lowest temperature recorded on The Freeman thermometer during the night was -3 degrees. The highest figure recorded up to noon today as 12 degrees.

Weather Forecast
New York city and vicinity — This afternoon, mostly sunny, highest temperature in the upper 20s, moderate northwesterly winds. Tonight mostly clear, lowest temperature 15 to 20 in the city, five to 10 in the suburbs, gentle west to southwest winds. Tomorrow considerable cloudiness, highest temperature in upper 20s, moderate southwest winds.

SNOW

Eastern New York: Fair today, increasing cloudiness and not so cold tonight. Tuesday mostly cloudy followed by light snow in interior.

Not Wood

Petrified wood is not wood at all, and never was wood. It is a form of quartz that, as the wood slowly disintegrated, displaced it cell by cell, thus retaining a likeness of the original structure.

Salt Content Low

The Caspian Sea, once a part of the ocean, has become so diluted that its salt content is less than a third that of the Atlantic.

Communism Feeds on Hunger

The communism that threatens Europe feeds on the desperate hunger of the people. How desperate that hunger is in some places is graphically illustrated by this picture of German youths searching for food in a dump-pile of empty cans near a U. S. Army mess hall in Stuttgart. Such sights are common in Germany.

HOME BUREAU

Kingston Unit
The first of two lessons on fabric handbags will be held Tuesday, January 27, at 1:30 p. m., in the Farm Bureau office, 74 John street, it has been announced. Those desiring to attend this class are requested to notify Mrs. Robert J. Hudler, leader, by telephone, 3285.

Each person attending has been asked to bring one half yard of any material for outside of bag such as fabric, felt or wool material; one-half yard lining (a silk finish lining is better) and a half-yard of flannel.

These items are sufficient to make one bag, it is reported. Other articles needed include a pair of scissors, pins, needles, thread, pencil and notebook.

Tilston Unit
The Tilston unit of the Home Bureau met last Wednesday evening at the Tilston fire house. Good progress was said to have been made on the plastic bags under the direction of Mrs. Muriel Guerrero, leader. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, January 28, at 7 p. m.

Lomontville Unit
The Lomontville Home Bureau unit will meet Thursday at 1:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Otto Kern for its monthly business meeting. Part of the afternoon will be devoted to a discussion on program planning.

Cooked Vegetables
Cooked vegetables make excellent salads. Lima beans marinated in French Dressing, for instance, and served on a bed of shredded lettuce, are good with a fish dinner. A grating of onion may be added to the vegetable as it is marinating if the dressing does not already contain onion.

Experiments May Solve Mystery of Decay in Teeth

San Francisco, Jan. 26 (AP)—Two dental researchers reported today they had succeeded in producing, for the first time on record, decay of a tooth in a test tube, and that the results may solve the mystery of this most widespread of human diseases.

Significantly, the experimenters said, the decay organisms grew and attacked the tooth in a solution that contained only traces of sugar or starch, and in a slightly alkaline rather than an acid environment.

This runs counter to a widespread scientific belief that tooth decay organisms, in the mouth at least, do their most damaging work in the presence of acid formed by the breakdown of sugar or starch in the diet.

The report was made by Dr. Harry E. Frisbie and Dr. James Nuckolls, of the University of California College of Dentistry, to a meeting of the college's alumni.

The tooth was an immature molar, taken from a Syrian Hamster, a ratlike animal highly susceptible to dental decay. It was placed in a test tube and cultured organisms from a decayed tooth of another Hamster were added.

In two months the tooth became discolored. Later, the rodlike decay organisms began boring into the organic structure of the tooth enamel, eating as they went, and presenting a picture identical to the tooth decay seen in human mouths.

The results of these experiments were in line with previous studies by Frisbie and Nuckolls indicating that decay attacks the organic inner structure of the tooth, doing much of its destructive work beneath the enamel surface and out of sight of the dentist, and that its appearance on the outside of the tooth indicates an advanced stage of development.

Production of tooth decay in a test tube means that experimenters hereafter may be able to absolutely control tests designed to show how it develops. It means complete control of the diet and environment of the organisms, something that could not be done in human mouths. This degree of control may yield information which cannot be obtained in human subjects.

Copper was used by early people almost all over the world.

Teachers Make Pleas For Salary Increases

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—Specific demands for teacher pay increases were presented to the legislature today as it began the fourth week of a session marked by the absence of action on any major legislation.

The New York State Teachers Association asked that the number of automatic annual pay raises be increased from five to nine and that the merit promotion system be amended.

In the meantime it was disclosed that Governor Dewey will recommend to the legislature in his budget message Friday that the state pay the $3,000,000 annual cost of the teacher training program in New York city's four municipal colleges.

Dewey conferred with legislative leaders and cabinet officers at the mansion last night and out of the parley is expected to come a speedup of the legislative processes.

The legislature began its 1948 session on January 7 and since then has not even debated a major measure. There have been three reasons: Delay in introduction of the Dewey program bills; the necessity of committee action on contemplated legislation and the usual early slowness of both the Senate and House.

Dewey's submission of his 1948-49 budget is expected to jar loose the log jams and start the legislative ball rolling fast toward mid-March adjournment. The budget still is unofficially estimated at $750,000,000.

No Change Forecast
Despite the pleas of teachers for additional salary increments, it was believed no material change would be made in the 1947 Feinberg teacher pay law.

The State Teachers Association representing 45,000 upstate teachers, asks that teachers in communities of under 100,000 population be automatically advanced to a top minimum of $3,500 from the present $2,750 through four additional automatic increments. Thereafter those qualifying for promotional increases would advance by two steps to $4,100, which now requires four steps to reach.

Teachers in cities over 100,000 except New York, would advance from their present top minimum of $3,025 to $3,950 by automatic increments and to $4,500 by promotional increases.

In New York city the maximum would be $5,125, the same as it is now, but the schedule would be changed in the upward grading.

All the starting minimums fixed in the Feinberg law would be retained.

The association also proposed additional increments for teachers of long experience in order that they might advance more rapidly than newer teachers toward the place in the schedule corresponding with their years of experience.

The pay program was announced by the association's executive and planning committees, which disclosed that a compromise had been reached on the controversial promotional increment provisions of the Feinberg law.

Automatic Raises Sought
A large number of teachers favored making all raises automatic. Others favored at least a trial of the promotional increment plan, under which all annual increases after the first five are based on merit.

The compromise consisted of an agreement to press for abolition of the present stipulation in the law that school boards must promote a certain percentage of the faculty but could promote all the qualified teachers be advanced.

Decision of the Dewey administration under which the state will underwrite the entire cost of the teacher training program in New York city's municipal colleges was reached after consultation with the Young commission, which has been studying the need of a state university.

The colleges are City College, Queens College, Hunter College and Brooklyn College. The current budget of the four is $17,140,000, of which the federal government contributes $3,668,000 in G.I. tuition.

Never has the state made a substantial contribution to the municipal colleges, most of whose students are New York city residents.

Mayor William O'Dwyer, in announcing last month that he would seek $84,000,000 in additional state aid to help finance the city's operations, did not include help to the colleges in his program.

Dewey's budget also will contain a $4,000,000 appropriation for the continued operation of the 11 state teacher colleges.

Chicago's Teachers Offer Strike Threat

Chicago, Jan. 26 (AP)—A teacher strike threat hung over the city council's finance committee in its scheduled meeting today on approval of a record $97,972,000 public school tax levy for 1948.

The committee deferred action on the school budget in a meeting Thursday with the result that the Board of Education was unable to issue salary checks to the 14,000 teachers and 9,000 other employees for the two-week period ended January 16.

In postponing action on the budget, the committee summoned school board officials and Superintendent Herold C. Hunt to explain salary increase of up to 8 1/2 per cent, provided for in the new levy.

More than 1,000 teachers already have voted to strike; the levy is not approved at today's session. Another 8,000 have indicated their action will be decided by a committee which will meet at the conclusion of the council session, while a third group of 3,000 teachers said it will attempt legal action to force release of the salary checks.

Because of the Christmas holiday.
